Quote

I think art is a total thing. A total person giving a contribution. It is an essence, a soul... In my inner soul art and life are inseparable" ~ Eva Hesse

About me

I am an Art Education major with a concentration in pottery at Colorado State University. I love traveling, knitting, hanging with friends, and creating art. I grew up moving all over because, my dad was in the military. I have lived in places like Hawaii, Japan, Italy, and Florida, just to name a few! I have loved creating and teaching, and it is something that I am extremely passionate about. I am so excited to work with everyone, and explore mediums.

Experiences

I have taught tap, ballet, baton and Jazz dance classes from preschool to middle school age for 4 years. I have nannied multiple families throughout my years as a college student. And I recently taught a sculpture class for students with emotional and learning differences.

Why Teaching?

I have always enjoyed working with the younger generation, and art has been a passion of mine for many years. I chose teaching because I have found a space where I can explore, be creative and most important, be myself. I hope that I can create a space for students where they feel like they can enjoy their process of art and also find their creative voice.
